When the Lincoln Public Schools needed to update the Dorsey-Howley Performing Arts Center at Lincoln Southeast High School, Diversified Design Group, Inc. was brought in to work with the architect and engineers as part of the design team. Our goal was to create a performing arts space that was innovative, functional and budget conscious.

Extensive acoustic modeling and A/V system design were used to create an overall audio/visual system that was capable of handling a wide variety of performances, varied attendance numbers and a unique learning experience for the student operators.

Diversified Design Group, Inc., working closely with the architects and engineers, provided the essential design and project oversight necessary to exceed the clients needs and stay within their budget. Communication with and training of employees is vital to a companies bottom line.
